We have the world's oldest known set of golf clubs on display in the Museum. They were discovered in 1898 in a house in Hull. The two irons are thought to date from the 1600s and the six wood to the early 1700s.

Early golfers did not use numbers on their clubs; they were known by names such as brassie, spoon, cleek, mashie and niblick. The driver and putter are the only clubs to have consistently retained their names since the 19th century.

In 1868, Tom Morris Junior became the youngest ever winner of The Open, aged just 17 years and 156 days. The next year he had the first ever hole-in-one in the Championship, at the eighth hole in the first round, and went on to win by 11 strokes. Tommy's name is the first name engraved on the Claret Jug and his gold winner's medal from 1872 is on display in the Museum.
